

The coastal town of Kuala Perlis is a major departure point for the fabled Langkawi Island and offers a ferry terminal for island-bound passengers. Located at the mouth of the Sungai Perlis, this is also the main point for fishermen to unload their day's catches, which are then transported by trucks to other parts of the county.

The town of Kuala Perlis has just a couple of streets, which are filled with restaurants popular for seafood and local specialties (such as laksa, a white rice noodle in a fish-based gravy).
