This unique attraction will be a sure hit with the romantics. Built in the mid 1880s by the British North Borneo Company, the train served as the major form of transportation between towns. Today, it offers a memorable ride from Tanjung Aru to Papar, a nostalgia reminder to passengers of bygone colonial days, while showing the best of Sabah's countryside.

Getting there: The train operates twice weekly. Bookings may be made with selected travel agents in Kota Kinabalu or directly with the railway company.
